

ScottMadden and APQC to Host Financial Shared Services Webinar: A Whole New Ballgame

ATLANTA, GA – (March 16, 2016) – ScottMadden, Inc., a general management consulting firm, will soon partner with the American Productivity & Quality Center (APQC), a benchmarking and best practices research organization, to host a financial management webinar. The session will be held on Wednesday, March 23 from 11:00 AM–12:00 PM CDT and will highlight financial shared services organizations (SSOs) design options.

Financial shared services have evolved from a single-function, region-specific setup to the current multiplex environment. But, what's the critical difference between successful SSOs and those that fail? It's all about having a good design.

During this one-hour complimentary session, Brad DeMent and Trey Robinson, partners at ScottMadden, will provide a working understanding of:

- Questions to ask in the early stages of financial SSO planning
- Embedding sound service frameworks and governance structures
- Data analytics for predicting customer behavior and boosting service levels
- Pioneering with process robotics in the quest for perpetual efficiencies

“Shared services organizations are evolving rapidly from regional, single-function organizations focused on cost savings to global multi-function models that provide scale, deliver higher-value processes, focus on innovation, and improve customer satisfaction. Understanding the impact on design is important, whether just beginning shared services or taking your existing organization to the next level,” said Mr. Robinson.

“XXX,” added Mr. DeMent.
