

ScottMadden to Explore Procure-to-Pay Technology and Digitized End-to-End Processes at IOFM Conference

ATLANTA, GA – (April 26, 2017) – ScottMadden, Inc., a general management consulting firm, will soon join industry leaders as a sponsor and presenter at the Institute of Finance & Management’s (IOFM) Accounts Payable & Procure-To-Pay Conference & Expo to be held May 7–9 at Disney’s Yacht & Beach Club Resort in Orlando, FL. This event brings together experienced practitioners and strategists to provide an in-depth learning experience. Join ScottMadden and meet your toughest challenges in Accounts Payable (AP) and Procure-to-Pay (P2P) head-on.

Over the past five years, P2P technology adoption has received a lot of press. However, without an effective supporting operating model, many have struggled to obtain the full range of potential end-to-end P2P benefits. During the workshop, “Designing a P2P Operating Model to Realize the Full Potential of P2P Technology,” Brad DeMent, Andy Flores, and Trey Robinson, partners at ScottMadden, will focus on the essential activities required to design and implement a P2P operating model. The team will specifically address setting the strategy, quantifying the opportunity, designing a model that optimizes P2P performance, defining structure and roles, and highlighting the most important activities required for successful implementation.

Additionally, Mr. Robinson will present the case study session, “Digitizing End-to-End Process, Domestic and Global.” Technological innovations in Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Robotic Process Automation (RPA) are quickly changing the way we run our daily lives. They will also change the way you run your shared services or P2P operation.

“Don’t skate to where the hockey puck is now, but skate to where it will be,” said Mr. Robinson. “Plan your shared services future and associated investments wisely. Consider whether you are investing in technology now that will be irrelevant in two to three years.”
