

ScottMadden Releases New Decentralized Generation Interactive with its Winter 2015 Energy Industry Update

ATLANTA, GA – (March 24, 2015) – ScottMadden, Inc., one of North America’s leading energy consulting firms, recently released its Winter 2015 edition of the Energy Industry Update. This semi-annual publication offers our inside view of major events and emerging trends in the energy industry. The Winter 2015 edition premieres a new look and feel along with an interactive map profiling U.S. distributed generation \(DG\) penetration.

DG continues to make inroads in the U.S. power supply mix. But how much is there? Precise figures on exactly how much installed DG exists continue to be elusive. ScottMadden’s Winter 2015 Energy Industry Update explores the growth of distributed solar and shows how a few states dominate DG.

Newly released EIA longitudinal data (through 2013) provide a telling story for this rapidly evolving sector. As part of its Winter 2015 Energy Industry Update DG coverage, ScottMadden has developed an online interactive map that allows users to view newly released EIA data that looks at decentralized resource penetration by state, technology, and type and compares it to previous years. As utilities continue to rethink business models and respond to expanded DG, we hope showing “where the action is”—and is trending—will be both interesting and informative.
